DRAFT

IAC-D-81/12

14 July 1955

Establishment of Ad Hoc Guided Missile Intelligence

Investigating Committee

1. Pursuant to actions of the Intelligence Advisory Committee (IAC) taken at its meeting on 12 July 1955, an ad hoc Guided Missile Intelligence Investigating Committee is hereby established under the IAC, for the purpose of investigating and evaluating the status of the national guided missile intelligence program, and reporting to the IAC fully by 15 October 1955. If, during the course of the investigation, deficiencies are revealed which require immediate corrective action, interim reports to the IAC will be made.

2. The ad hoc Committee shall be composed of one member and alternates from CIA; the Department of State; the Departments of the Army, Navy, and Air Force; the Joint Staff; the Atomic Energy Commission; the Federal Bureau of Investigation; and the National Security Agency.* The Chairman and Secretariat will be provided by CIA.

3. The mission of the ad hoc Committee will be to investigate, evaluate and recommend to the IAC on the status of coordination, emphasis, guidance, and coverage now existent in the national guided missile intelligence program, and the degree that continuing cognizance should be exercised, over these activities in the future, by an IAC committee or existing committees. To this end the ad hoc Committee shall survey the following areas of the guided missile intelligence program:

- a. Requirements.
- b. Guidance to collectors.
- c. Collection efforts.
- d. Utilization of community assets.
- e. Lateral flow of intelligence information.
- f. Intelligence research and analysis.
- g. Intelligence production.

* Subject to NSA acceptance of an IAC invitation.
